Reading Like a Writer

Conversations with Rilke

The Love Songs of W.E.B. Du Bois

Mario Vargas Llosa condenses a lifetime of writing, reading, and thought into an essential manual for aspiring writers. Drawing on the stories and novels of writers from around the globe—Borges, Bierce, Céline, Proust, Joyce, Dostoevsky, Flaubert, Thomas Mann—the author presents a collected history, personal reflection, and a précis of what he considers the most exciting contemporary writing. Vargas Llosa's approach to writing is at once rigorous and personal, and his book offers a unique understanding of what it means to be a writer in the twentieth century.

What I saw made me for the time being forget the agony of the pain that racked my swollen arm and rheumatical body.
Dear Edward is at once a transcendent coming-of-age story, a multidimensional portrait of an unforgettable cast of characters, and a breathtaking illustration of all the ways a broken heart learns to love again. Praise for Dear Edward “Dear Edward made me think, nod in recognition, care about its characters, and cry, and you can’t ask more of a novel than that.”—Emma Donoghue, New York Times bestselling author of Room

“Weaving past and present into a profoundly beautiful, page-turning story of mystery, loss, and wonder, Dear Edward is a meditation on survival, but more important, it is about about carving a life worth living. It is about love and hope and caring for others, and all the transitory moments that bind us heart.”—Kamila Shamsie, author of Home Fire

Dear Edward is a portrait of a boy—Edward—are there any other words necessary?—given up by his mother and raised to hate one another. And yet, when they learn of each other’s stories, they recognize the loss that connects them. So much so that in the present day, the third generation of the Milton family—my family—isn’t sure if this is what we’re supposed to be. If we’re supposed to feel this way. If we’re supposed to be afraid. If we’re supposed to be hateful. If we’re supposed to be, if we’re supposed to, if we’re supposed to. If we’re supposed to know our history. If we’re supposed to learn from our history. If we’re supposed to repeat our history. If we’re supposed to break our history. If we’re supposed to be, if we’re supposed to, if we’re supposed to. If we’re supposed to know our history. If we’re supposed to learn from our history. If we’re supposed to repeat our history. If we’re supposed to break our history.
